tions, for the transportation and subsistence of those placed on duty.

Upon the assembling of the Veteran Volunteers at the rendezvous, after the expiration of the furloughs, Super-ntendents will report the respective commands, forgiments, companies, or detachments), to the Adjutant General of the Army for orders.

The reports will give the strength of the command—the number of recruits for it, obtained during the furlough, to be stated separately.

In returning volunteers to the field the Superintendents will arrange with the Quartermaster's Department for the necessary transportation.

Superintendents will confer with the Governors and ents will arrange with the Quartermaster's Departmen for the necessary transportat on.

Superintendents will confer with the Governors an arrange with them as to the points of rendezvous for the volunteers herein referred to. The rendezvou must be at points where there are already public bar racks, or quarters; and if the accommodations are no sufficient for the number to rensezvous thereat, the Quartermaster's Department, on the requisition of the Superintendent, will supply the deficiency.

At the respective rendezvous the Subsistence Department will be charged with the subsistence of the troops The Superintendents will advise the Su-sistence Department of the number of troops that will have to b supplied.

The enormous national banking scheme of the Secretary of the Treasury is going into of a certain amount of national bonds, can issue notes to circulate as currency, redeemable in lawful money of the United States-that is, in greenbacks. There is no gold in sight in these institutions, unless the Supreme Court of the United States should declare the legal tender part of the arrangement anconstitu tional, in which case the grand national shinplaster factories will tail; for they will then have no lawful money of the United States to redeem their issues with.

But, perhaps, we are too dull to see the new light vouchsafed to see how firms get hold of cotton contrary to agents. We didn't know before the value of wink. We hope the editor of the Gazette will illustrate the whole business, so that it can be understood.

We have heard and seen hints and winks about here that may be profitable, and we are anxious to get into the full merit of them. We have not heard of any cotton speculations in Louisville that turned out so well. Cincinnati has got an advantage in this line. We don't like that; and if there be any speculations without the s, we think Louisville should have a share. We have as loyal people here as there are in Cincinnati, and they ought to have the same opportunities.

In regard to a lot of one hundred and sixty-three bales of cotton, referred to in a former article, we have the following information: There lives near Memphis a planter named Stewart. He is a native of this State, and his father was a neighbor and acquaintance of the father of Thos. H. Yeatman, Treasury Agent at Memphis, Tenn. This man is 79 years old. His two sons joined the rebel army, leaving the old man with his wife and two daughters at home. When the National daughters at home. When the National forces occupied Memphis, Mr. Stewari's cotton was in the field. Having lost his help, he arranged with some one to pick, gin and hal the cotton on shares. This was done. Mr Stewart then visited Mr. Yeatman, with reference to getting the cotton to market. He stated his case fully. After receiving the in-formation, Mr. Yeatman esused the cotton to be seized. A lawyer of Memphis visted Mr. be setzed. A lawyer of mempins visted Mr. Yeatman to plead for Mr. Stewart, but he was informed that he had the "dead wood" on that cotton, and would hold it. The lawyer then advised his client to sell the cotton. for $5,000 to an army officer, which he consented to do. This officer consented to make the purchase, and Mr. Yeatman was advised of the fact and did not object, but requested that the officer be sent to him. The officer visited the treasury agent accordingly, and Mr. Yeatman informed him that he had seized the cotton would held it end driven. Mr. Yeatman informed him that he had seized the cotton, would hold it, and advised him to have nothing to do with it. The officer took his advice, of course, and the cotton was finally shipped to Cincinnati and taken into court for confiscation. This is the story, in brief, as related to us by a gentleman, who also says Mr. Stewart is a friend of the Government, and can prove as good a character for loyally as any one who could live with his family and hold property during the reign of terror in the State. terror in that State.

The next case is that of 922 bales of cotton, seized at this port a few days ago, a copy of the libel in which case was published in the Gezette at the time. While copying the libel our reporter was informed by Mr. Carson that there was a claimant for that cotton, but he refused to give the name. Monday we were told that a copy of the bill might be obtained from the mercantile firm with which the cotton was stored. We made application accordingly, but a copy of the bill was refused. We ascertzined, however, through other sources, the history of this lot of cotton.

It is caused by Lacy, Able & Co. These are extensive operators in military districts, and by some means or other have obtained.

There was at the time this cotton was purchased a military order prohibiting all trade within the lines, but operators had a way of arriving at an understanding with treasury agents, and while they passed the lines the agents merely winked. been purchased and brought out, it was prima facie liable to conficcation, having been procured in violation of regulations. Then it as a moral or religious agent, is no newspaper, and must ever be limited in range and influence—limited, indeed, to those who need it least.

—No one can inherit manhood or have it absolutely parties to an arrangement for a viola tion of military orders and regulations, by which they bring a heavy amount of grist into their mill. Military orders and stringent regulations are therefore desirable, and it is always, of course, important that the law should be strictly enforced against those who venture to trade without contracting for a general division of the spoils. The rules are so enforced against all such short sighted and selfish traders. The way in which guerrillas are conciliated by these combinations of traders, shows what a power there is in money, and also how pli-able loyalty is where dollars and cents are involved. This point we shall refer to again, in connection with further developments which we are promised in connection with SOMETHING EXTRAORDINARY .- M. D. COLway, writing from London to the Boston Com - of Chine monwealth, says:

Let me tell you of a wonderful chess-player, an account of whose performances I received lately from a distinguished a.d learned Hindoo pundit here, Ram Shandah Bal Chreshni. The chess player came from Madras to Bombay, where Ram Shandah saw him. He is between forty-five and fifty years of age. He plays a very forty-five and fifty years of age. He plays several games—three, if I remember—blindtolded, and wins them. At the same time he plays a game of cards-there are 120 different cards in a Hindoo pack—and wins. At the time when these games are going on he is given orally sums of multiplication to the extent of four figures (e. g., 9397x8999), and gives the correct result. At the same time a sentence of about one hundred words, each word being numbered, is given to him irregularly (thirty-five if, ninety-two but, sixty-one pitcher, &c.,) and he gives the whole sentence. During the and he gives the whole sentence. During game a bell is touched everyone or two sec and he gives the number of times it has been ouched. A man stands behind and throw little pebbles, one by one, against his back; these, too, he counts. And after the games are over, and all these are told, he recites a poem in perfect rhyme, which he has composed during the sitting! Ram Shundah is, I assure you, an entirely credible witness, and a very clever man every way.

Spicy Letter from a New Orleans Rebel Lady. [From the Mobile Tribune, December 7.] The following letter, written by a lady distinguished in the literary world, and addressed to her friend in Mobile, has been kindly placed at our disposal for publication. The pungent style of the fair authoress is goodhumoredly sarcastic, and evinces how much spirit and endurance our countrywomen manifest under the most trying circumstances of Yaukee despotism:

of Yankee despotism: New Orleans, Nov. 9, 1862.

Dear Friend Edwin—Your little note of last July came safely to hand, but no opportunity has since presented itself until now. We were glad to know that you were not yet entirely "starved out" (vide Yankee accounts), but still alive and jubilant.

How is it, O Hermit! that thou caust not manage to get us through a real nice long let-

One thing, however, I want to remark on here—the perfect infatuation of these Federals for Secesh women. How is it, if they hate our brave men so much, that they melt so-Majors, Colonels and Generals—under the glances of our Southern women? There is not one of them, or at least but few, that not one of them, or at least but few, that could not be turned wrong side out, like an old glove, by any cute rebel of my sex; and let me assure you that the only salvation of some high in office here has been the unbending pride and purity of the Southern female character, which can not stoop to the semblance of unbecoming friendship and familiarity ever for the adventure. arity even for the advancement of the cause

We hear much of the suffering for food and clothing in the Confederacy. Provisions were exceedingly plentiful and cheap here until sometime back, when the guerrillas (more power to them!) administered a peopering to one of their gunboats, which rendered her a complete serve, and made the Yankees rather shy of the river for the nones.

The star of negroism is still culminating with blazing brilliancy in this city. We have now free schools for negroes in all directions, under white teachers. They also petition for the tight of suffrage, through the columns of the Era.

San Francisco. A correspondent of the Milwaukee News thus pictures San Francisco:

It is a beautiful city, full of life, business, and money. It is unlike other cities—unlike them in every custom, appearance, and manner of living. People live independently and queerly. The prudence of Northern society would receive a severe shock to hear of ladies and gentlemen living in furnished rented rooms, eating at a restaurant, and owning a residence one or two miles outside the city limits, to which they retire as suits their convenience, staying in one place at night, another during the day, and boarding at resource. taurants. Not such restaurants as you have in your Northern cities—underground, windows of stained glass, a bar, and fit only for loaters—but elegant saloons, fitted up with taste and style, with dressing rooms for both ladies and gentlemen, private and public entrances, a reading room, and everything equal to a splendid hotel. Every other building nearly has furnished rooms to let, and restaur-ants are to be found in all parts of the city, near every corner and every place of public business. People look happy, contented and mind their own business, and seem to be very busy at that. No crowds or clubs of lazy men stand on the corners peering into the faces of passers-by, or loaf around the steps of hotels and saloons, with nothing to do but pick their and saloons, with nothing to do but pick their teeth and revel in petty gossip. Everybody has employment. Rich and poor dress in the hight of fashion and wear the most costly of fabrics. Montgomery is almost a palace of stores and store palaces. stores and store palaces.

I should be considered an immense falsifier if I should tell the weight of apples, pears and grapes in this State. Think of pears weighing from one and a half to three pounds—potatoes (not fruit, however,) ditto—and grapes weighing five and six pounds the bunch; the most delicious tasking grapes in the world. most delicious tasting grapes in the world are to be found in California. San Francisco has almost a foreign appearance, yet enough of good old America to make it a home for the American, who endures the foreign hab-its, which have become ruling customs from foreign majority which Spanish customs, names and fashions prevail over the city. People never speak of a park, but a plaza, a lovely spot in the heart of the city, now fragrant with fresh blooming flowers, and the shade trees that eneircle it. The Spanish custom of ladies, remaining in-doors until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, is carried out by the ladies of San Francisco, generally. You see few ladies in the street before that time. The Chinamen, or rather the Chinese population, form a very prominent feature of the city. They are on every street, and one part of the city is devoted entirely to their trade and business. At any hour of the day the near Chinamen, can be seen with his two the poor Chinaman can be seen with his two baskets on his shoulders, his hair in a long braid quite to his feet, gathering up the paper and rags in the street. The principal and best paying occupation of the poorer classes of Chinese is washing; their odd-looking signs are hung out all over the city; they look queer, indeed, and we would imagine the names meaningless; for instance, "Chung We," "Sing Tean" and "Ya Chong"

Railroad Business at Chicago. Fourteen years ago the first railway train ran out of Chicago. Now there are ninety trains leaving the city daily. The total number of cars in these trains is one thousand four hundred and thirty-two freight, and one hundred and sixty-three passenger cars. Placing these out-trains all in one fine, adding the length of engine and tender of each train, the total length of all the trains leaving the city daily is twenty-five miles and twelve rods-a very respectable day's journey for a man to drive from one end of the train to the other. The in-coming trains average the same length, and about the same business.

Allowing ten tuns to be a load for a freight passengers and twenty-eight thousand six hundred and forty tuns of freight. Suppose we imaginarily banish railroads, and set ourselves back lifteen years, when there were no railroads in this section, and when freight and passengers were moved by teams. One tun is considered a load for two teams. One tun is considered a load for two horses over a country road, and three persons for a traveling team of two horses. At this rate it would require six thousand five hundred and twenty horses to move the passengers, and fourteen thousand three hundred and twenty to move the freight, and twenty thousand eight hundred and furty horses to move the passengers and freight that arrive power of vision was restored to him in its function of the place of worship, without a guide, there to pour forth thanks to the All-mercital for the mercy shown to him.—[Jewish Chronicle, where the passengers and freight that arrive and depart daily by railroad, and at less than one-tenth the rate of locomotive speed. THE WEATHER-PROSPECTS OF NAVIGATION -COAL SUNK .- The weather continues to moderate, yesterday being the warmest day of the year, and it was thawing from morning ill night. The warm weather has softened the ice in the river, and it is thought that navigation will be resumed in a short time. The ice has gorged around the coal boats lying from Towhead all the way down, and it was thought that a large amount of property would be destroyed in the sinking of coal boats, but as the weather has been gradually moderating there is but little danger of a great amount of destruction being done establishment of a school for teachers. Mr. Authony's resolution was adopted, call-eg on the Military Committee of the Senate, equiring whether any obstacles have been hrown in the way of the egress of colored nen, not subject to military duty here, and if o by whom, and by what authority or law. Mr. Lane's bill, relative to the sale of gold was read twice and referred to the Filance was read twice and reterred to the France Committee and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Wilson spoke at length on his resolution to expel Senator Davis, of Kentucky. He concluded by saying how subtle a thing would fire the loyal heart of America, silence the muturings of treasen. the mutterings of treason, and honor the arms of the heroes who are battling and bleeding for the unity of the Republic. Mr. Doolittle thought it would be desirable. before coming to a vote, to hear Senator Davis, of Kentucky. After that he hoped the resolution would be referred to a committee. Mr. Davis then spoke,

HOUSE. Mr. Yeaman made a speech explaining the object of his resolutions, heretofore offered, which were to invite and encourage the loyal people of the South to resume the functions of civil government under the Constitution. The Pennsylvania claim bill was postponed until information can be procured from the Second Auditor's office.

Mr. Boutwell, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill to enable the President's emancipation proclamation to be carried into effect.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the President's annual message. Adjourned. NEW YORK, January 13.

New York, January 13. The message of Gov. Parker, of New Jersey, delivered to day, discusses the question of pacification. He says the war should be prosecuted by all Constitutional means to destroy the power of the rebellion and the establishment of the national authority over the whole country. He disapproves of the plan of the President's amnesty proclamation, using consultatory measures and the restore. niging concillatory measures and the restoraion of the State governments as they existed before the rebellion. He also disapproves of the emancipation proclamation as an obstacle n the way of peace. The war should be prolonged no longer than is necessary to effect its legitimate object, and the Governor argues at length that the old Union and old Constitution alone are its legitimate object. NEW YORK, Jan. 13. The Post says that late news by private etter and otherwise from Italy gives icfornation of an extended agitation there or the Venetian question.

FRANKFORT, KY., Jan. 4, 1864 The frequent outrages perpetrated in various parts of the State by lawless bands of marauders can, in a large degree, be traced to the active aid of rebel sympathizers in our midst, or their neglect to furnish to military commandants the information in their possession, which would lead to the defeat and capture of such marauders.

Sympathizers with the rebellion who, while enjoying protection from the Government, abuse the leniency extended to them by con-cealing the movements of rebel guerrillas, by giving them information, affording them shelter, supplying them with provisions and othravise encouraging and fomenting private aids, are in criminal complicity with all the nutrages perpetrated by the marauders whom outinges perpetrated by the managers whom they secretly countenance. It is in the power of persons whose sympa-thies are with the rebellion to prevent guer-rilla raids, almost invariably, by furnishing to military officers of the United States or State of Kentucky the information which experience has proved them to be, as a general hing, possessed of.

If all would unite, as is their duty, in putting down guerrillas, we would soon cease to be troubled with thei raids. A neglect to afford all assistance and information which may aid in defeating the designs of marauding parties can but be construed as a culpable and active assistance to our enemies. I therefore request that the various milita-Most of the boats lying at the wharf are nearly high and dry.

Letter of Rev. E. F. Crane, Chaplain of the 197th New York Regiment: NEAR ACQUIA CREEK, March 4th, 1863. Owing to the great exposure and terrible decomposi-tion after the battle of Antietam, I was utterly prostrated and very sick. My stomach would not retain medicine. An article called Plantation Bitters, prepared by Dr. Drake, of New York, was prescribed to give me strength and an appetite. To my great surprise they gave me immediate relief. Two bottles almost allowed me to join my regiment.
